St. Louis Team

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 27.—UP—Events shaped up today in such a way that there appeared a strong likelihood that the franchise of the St. Louis Browns ultimately will cross the international boundary to Montreal, Que.

Executors of the estate of the late Philip de Cadeby Ball, philanthropic owner of the Browns, were advised by the United Press that sports promoters in the Canadian city will bid for the club if it is offered for sale, and if successful, will move it to Montreal.

The interested promoters are Joseph Cattarino and Leo Dandurand, operators of the Montreal Exhibition Company, which controls the Montreal International League club. If they obtained the Browns, they said, they would move them to Montreal and send the International franchise elsewhere.

Louis B. Von Weiss, co-executor of the Ball estate, when advised of the Montreal offer said here today that the affairs of the Browns had not yet come up for discussion but that ultimately a meeting would be held.

KENNEL CLUBGIANT TEAMS
IN FOOTBALL
MEET TODAY

By UNITED PRESS

Pacific coast football will reach a high mark in interest and attendance tomorrow when California attempts the man-sized task of defeating University of Southern California in the Berkeley stadium, Stanford opposes Washington on a wet Seattle field, and Oregon's unbeaten and untied team tackles U. C. L. A. in Los Angeles.

The Oregon State team that held U. S. C. to a scoreless tie will share the spotlight when it meets the tough Washington State team at Corvallis.

The fifth coast conference game will pit Montana's Grizzlies against Idaho at Moscow.

Attendance should near the 20,000 mark at the five games, which throw apparently evenly balanced teams against each other.

Ninety thousand spectators are expected to use every available seat in Memorial stadium at Berkeley. More than 30,000 fans were arriving from southern California and they brought money which they bet at 10 to 6 on the Trojans.

Stanford's awakened team arrived in Seattle to be greeted by a drizzle of rain. A wet field and a wet ball was not expected to aid the Indians, who remained favorites because of victories over U. C. L. A., Santa Clara and U. of San Francisco, and a scoreless tie with Northwestern. The Huskies lost their important game to Oregon last week, 6 to 0.

Oregon was led into southern California by Iron Mike Mikulak, who sat on the bench last season as the Uclans nosed out the Wolves.

Between Champion Lou Brouillard and Vince Dundee is another title match at Madison Square Garden, December 8. Promoter Jimmy Johnston announced tonight.

TO GAELS BY 61-0 SCORE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27.—UP—The Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's demonstrated their power against University of Nevada in this fog filled stadium today and when the mist finally cleared away the scoreboard read St. Mary's 61, Nevada 0.

Nearly 40,000 spectators saw Ship Madigan's warriors run up a 33 to 0 advantage in the first half. Thirty thousand of the fans were school children admitted for a dime each.

The kids howled with glee at the brilliant open field running of Al Nichilini and Herb Schrieber.

The Wild Pack offered stubborn resistance in the first quarter, holding the Gaels to one touchdown, but the superior manpower of St. Mary's was evident in the second quarter as the Gaels pushed over four touchdowns.

The lighter Nevada team could make no headway against the powerful forward wall of the Gaels and made but a total gain of one yard during the game.

The contest was but three minutes old when the Gaels were within scoring distance but Patter fumbled on the three-yard line and Nevada recovered, and kicked out. With Wilson and Nichilini alternating at carrying, the Gaels advanced the ball to the 10 yard line where Wilson went over left tackle for the first score.

Herb Schrieber came into the game in the second quarter and pepped up the whole St. Mary's attack.

The second touchdown was made when George Wilson pushed over right guard. Schrieber galloped around right end, eluded the entire Nevada team and raced fifty yards for the third score.

The Nevada team gained the ball on an exchange of kicks but could do nothing. Jack Hill stepped back to punt but big Schrieber broke through and blocked the kick. He picked up the ball and ambled 46 yards for a touchdown. Jorgensen failed to convert.

Schrieber broke loose for a 30 yard gain to put the ball in position for another touchdown on the 3-yard line. Boat carried it over.

Baeder failed to convert. The echo of the whistle opening the second half had hardly died down when George Carlinus took the ball on an end around play and dashed 46 yards to a touchdown.

The Gaels pushed over two more scores in the third quarter with George Wilson and Curtin sharing honors with one touchdown each.

The fourth quarter found the Wolves fighting stubbornly, holding the Gaels to one touchdown and launching an offensive of their own. Led by Herman Freudenberg they pushed over two first downs in a row but the offense was short-lived.

Coach Brick Mitchell gave every man on the small Nevada squad an opportunity to play. Madigan did likewise, calling upon the lowliest reserve.

feet by a last minute pass from their own goal line. Oregon leads the conference parade with victories over Idaho and Washington. Outcome of the game was difficult to forecast.

Oregon State sprang into the limelight with its startling tie with U. S. C., but was given no better than an even chance to defeat Washington State. The Cougars were held to a 6 to 6 tie by California last Saturday and earlier were trounced 33 to 0 by U. S. C. but few dopsters wanted to bet on that evidence.

Idaho was favored over Montana, although the Grizzlies revealed an improved team this year.

A Sunday game will pit Gonzaga against U. S. F. in Kezar stadium, San Francisco.

Happy Laddies
Big Thriller
At Dog Track

With hundreds of San Francisco fans flocking to El Cerrito Kennel Club track, Happy Laddies, a My Laddie offspring, furnished the last thrill Friday night by running off with the third Inter-Country Elimination race, one of the features on the bill.

Happy Laddie went to Captain Job like an express train, and My Stony and Midnight Doll were two-thirds with Sentiment eliminated. O. E. Jones owns Happy Laddie. The next elimination will be held Monday night.

Tonight El Cerrito will be the scene of another brilliant card, with the seven-sixteenths mile marathon pulling out several new entries like Spree's Passion, Red Robe and Baccu Bell, while the 5-16 mile match race sees Olympiad of Pete Locicero's kennel, Laddie's Maid, Sunny Sam and Miss Broomstick, sensational winner lately, in hot contention.

Laddie's Maid, another My Laddie pun, ran second to Maid of Grey in the Navy Handicap Friday at El Cerrito. Laddie's Maid closing fast but just missing. The crowd went wild over the spectacular finish.

4 Conference
Games to Be Fought Today

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—UP—One hundred and thirty-five thousand football fans are expected to see the four western conference games tomorrow, with 50,000 attending the day's feature game between Minnesota and Iowa at Minneapolis.

Another 25,000 probably will attend the Notre Dame-Pittsburgh game at South Bend, bringing the total attendance for the five big games in this region to 160,000.

The other three big ten games on tomorrow's schedule and the expected crowds follow:

GAELS EN ROUTE
EAST AFTER DAY
NEVADA GAME

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE, Oct. 27.—The Galloping Gael football team, thirty-four strong, is on its way East tonight for the third meeting with the Fordham University Rams at the Polo Grounds in New York City on November 4th.

Coach Edward P. "Ship" Madigan entrusted his charges immediately after the Saint Mary's-Nevada game in San Francisco tonight. He is leading the Gaels Eastward with the hope of repeating the startling upset of the Rams in 1930 by a score of 20 to 12, and of revenge of the 14-0 defeat by the New Yorkers encountered last year.

This is the first inter-sectional engagement for the Moraga team this season, December 9th the Saint Mary's eleven will encounter the famed "aerial circus" of Coach Roy Morrison's Southern Methodist squad.

Madigan's backfield combination of Sid Abern at quarter, Nichilini and widely-heralded George Wilson at halves, with George Dodson at fullback will carry the Gael offense against the Rams at the start of the game. Yates at center, Gilbert and Eldunyan at guards, Yezerski and Jorgensen at tackles and Fred and George Carlinus at the wing posts will attempt to make the going for the Fordham backs tough.

Fordham's mental attitude will largely depend upon the outcome of the inter-sectional tilt it has with the Alabama Crimson Tide Saturday, maintains Coach Crowley, former star of Notre Dame. He will throw the strength of his first team against the onslaught of the stalwart Gael defense. Barring injuries, the line that will square off with the Gael forward wall will be composed of Nikita and Borden ends, Uzduvins, and Sarno, tackles; Waldron and Wolfendale, guards and Del Isola at center.

The flashy backfield unit will be made up of McDermott at quarterback, Danowski, outstanding half of the Eastern football circles, and Maniac at the halfback posts, and Tony Sauski at full.

Saint Mary's football squad will arrive in New York on Wednesday and spend the days until Saturday in practice for the Polo Grounds exhibition. Madigan's outfit will get in one day of work on the way, with a short session at Alva, Oklahoma, and a longer one at Soldier's Field in Chicago where they stop at the World's Fair.

An extended fourteen day tour has been laid out by the Board of Athletic Control. After the game in New York the varsity will visit the White House in Washington and greet President Roosevelt. On the return trip they will make a special stopover at the Notre Dame campus in South Bend, Indiana, and will travel through the Royal Gorge, Salt Lake City and Pueblo, Colorado.

They stop at Stockton on the way back, also, to meet Coach Alenzo Stagg's College of the Pacific team on November 11th.

Decline Shown In Nation Industry

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—UP—The Federal Reserve bulletin charged tonight that the last two months have shown a marked decline in industrial activity in industries operating under processing taxes or NRA codes.

The statement was greeted with excitement and resentment by NRA and agricultural adjustment association officials, and served to bring into sharp relief the wide gap between the viewpoints of the old line financial group in the administration and the apostles of the new deal.

Three Are Jailed For Bogus Cash

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27.—It took 20 minutes for Federal judge Harold A. Louderback to sentence Sam Ricotta, 41, proprietor of a San Jose beer parlor, to 10 years in the Federal prison and levy a fine of $500 for counterfeiting $20 gold bills.

Two others were sentenced with Ricotta. They were Antonio Vitetta, 43, and Antonio Tavalacci, both of San Jose, sentenced to five years and three years respectively, and fined $2 each.

Many Are Slain In Jaffa Riots

JAFFA, Palestine, Oct. 27.—Three Arabs and one policeman were killed today and seven other Arabs were reported dead as a result of rioting which followed a ban against an Arab demonstration protesting an increase in Jewish immigration.

Relief Fund Is Voted For State

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 27.—UP—California has been granted $2,362,294 from the Federal Emergency Relief Act of 1933 for furtherance of relief work according to a telegram received by the Governor's office today.

Pioneer 'Bad-Man' Is Dead at Reno

RENO, Nev., Oct. 27.—UP—Samuel Pales, pioneer of the "bad-men" days of Nevada, was dead today at 104.

Pales came west in 1849. He worked for Sandy Bowers on the Comstock lode in 1862 and mined at Bodie when gun-fighters were making that camp infamous.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Shortly before mid-Western farmers began their revolt, the Farmers' Union secretly petitioned General Johnson for a code under the Blue Eagle. They said they were tired of waiting for relief under the Agricultural Adjustment Administration Henry Bruere, head of the Bowers Savings Bank, now Roosevelt's bank coordinator, is supposed to be the highest salaried in the savings bank field. His check is for $60,000. One car used to carry officials of the Justice Department is a big sedan seized from bootleggers. Ex-Secretary of State Stimson took pains to have his dinner lists published officially. This was the special duty of his military aide. But "Sec" Hull has done him one better. Her next trip was on the Graf Zeppelin, which carried as freight her own airplane. An old friend of Marlene Dietrich, Frauline Stresman spent six years on the stage.

STILL THINKING

Professor Raymond Moley, former chief of Roosevelt's Brain Trust, is now the "Brains" for "Holy Joe" McKee, in his campaign for mayor of New York. At the same time, Professor A. Berle, another of the original Brain Trust, is counselling Major LaGuardia, the Fusion candidate.

Between Moley and the brilliant Berle no love was ever lost. NRA experts trying to formulate a code for the tax industry discovered that this is one business that the depression has enormously expanded. According to its statistics there are now six times as many taxis on the streets as in 1929. This is due to the hundreds of idle car owners who have turned to hawking—instead of earning a real living, they often drive down taxi rates—Two unexpected faces in the battery of high-priced attorneys brought to Washington by the Chase National Bank for its investigation were those of Mar-

Ptomaine Poisoning Requires Quick and Thorough Treatment

PTOMAINE POISONING is a food poisoning though it is not due to foods that are of themselves poisonous. It is a poisoning due to the spoiling or decomposition of foods before they are eaten. Probably ninety per cent of the cases are due to eating meat, particularly sausages, hamburger or a "green" meat like venal or lamb. In the past many cases occurred after eating meats or other foods that were preserved in tin, but that kind was often due to the composition of the tin and not to the meat.

MILK products, particularly cheese, have often been the exciting cause. The meat dishes that are at fault are made from meats that have been chopped up. The left-over and less choice remnants of meats are mixed and used for economy. The symptoms are those of acute gastro-intestinal irritation or acute inflammation of the inner lining of the stomach and intestines. It comes on usually within 12 to 24 hours after the food is eaten and starts suddenly, often with chilliness, with rigors and trembling, with cold sweat and dizziness. Pain comes on suddenly as a cramp. It may be in any part of the body, even in the chest, back or neck, but soon centers in the abdomen.

The mild cases suffer from abdominal pains, headache, severe thirst and general weakness. In a few hours they are relieved and outside of the extreme prostration are soon up and around. Sometimes we have severe colicky pains running all over the abdomen, purging, soon followed by fever, headache and severe prostration. The patient soon cannot walk, dizziness and vertigo become prominent. There may be cramps in legs and arms and very soon the patient is desperately sick. Thirst is intense, but water, medicine or anything else cannot be retained.

The fever sometimes runs very high and often alternates with cold sweats and the skin is cold and clammy. The tongue is coated with a brown fur and the edges are dry and shiny. The pains are intense and often can only be controlled with large doses of opiates. These are not beneficial for the condition, but the pain is often so intense that nothing else will do.

If the patient is fortunate enough to have all the offending food carried away, he will soon be relieved of his pain and will only suffer from the severe prostration and general weakness. It is surprising how frightfully sick and prostrated they become in just an hour or two and how soon it takes them to recover after the acute trouble is over. For some time after the attack the stomach and intestines are very susceptible to various kinds of foods and even good food, if it resembles the food that made them sick, will start the disturbances anew.

The treatment is to get rid of the offending food as soon as possible and in any way possible. Use plenty of hot fluids and warm soda water. Even if it does cause the stomach to empty it will clear out some of the cause. Heat should be applied to the body and feet, and cold to the head. Stimulants will be helpful. Get the offending trouble cleared out. Send for a physician at once, but do all you can before he arrives because in severe cases, particularly with patients who are old or debilitated, every minute counts.

To Clean Furniture

Here is a formula for a solution that is found excellent to use in washing furniture: Mix together one quart of boiling water, three tablepoons of boiled linseed oil and one table-spoon of turpentine.

Use two pieces of cheesecloth, one for washing, and one for wiping. Wash only a small portion of the wood and wipe perfectly dry before you proceed to another section. As soon as the mixture becomes soiled, make up a fresh lot and also change to a fresh cloth as soon as the one in use becomes soiled.

COSMETICS ARE AN INVESTMENT IN GOOD LOOKS

By JACQUELINE HUNT

WHILE the manufacture of cosmetics is one of the largest industries in the United States, I am constantly surprised at the confusion in the minds of most women as to the purpose of various products. Right now at the end of summer, when most of you have beauty problems, and when you must prepare for a new, and exciting, season ahead, is the time to check up on the cosmetics.

Take a trip to your largest department store or beauty salon and look at the new beauty products. Many of them are especially prepared to take away the yellowish end-of-the-summer remnants of your glorious summer tan. Most of you need to get a softer, oilier group of creams, foundations, lotions and rouges now that mornings are brisker and winds are chilly and drying. Even though you have been using the same creams and powders and lotions for years, try something different now. It does things for you—puts you in a mood to enjoy the adventures of that September brings. Often a new cream will do grand things for your skin or a new tone of eye shadow will give a new luster and expressiveness to your eyes.

You can rely on the purity of the ingredients used in a nationally advertised beauty product. Perhaps some are better for your own particular type of skin than others however. And the best one for your skin can be determined only by experimentation or by expert advice from a skin specialist. You can use good beauty products without spending a lot of money. A little of a good cream or tonic will go twice as far as an inferior one and you will use every bit of it, while a product that is unsatisfactory will be put back or thrown away. The only expensive cosmetic you have is the one you get back on your shelf and forget about. Those that you use every day or every week for special beauty treatments are investments—not only in good looks, but in self-confidence and often in business success. They are fortifying you against the attacks of time. They are keeping you fresh and happy for your friends and for your home.

One of the questions that women frequently ask me is the difference in cleansing creams and cold creams. A real cleansing cream, and you can tell it by its texture and by its name—is to be used only for cleansing. It usually has a rather clear, grainy appearance and it dissolves instantly on touching your skin. A cold cream is used both for softening and cleansing the skin. It contains slightly heavier oils often with soothing properties.

Creams of the "tissue" or "nourishing" kind are made for softening the skin and some of them contain chemicals that are gently stimulating to the glands and tend to normalize sluggishness and dryness. "Astringent" creams are what their name implies—a cream that is astringent in action and tends to tighten enlarged pores and to help overcome cases of extreme oiliness. Muscle oils are similar in action to the astringent creams but they are not quite so strong. They may be used once or twice a week on a very dry skin to help tone the muscles and improve the circulation. Usually these are used for the older woman or for a skin that has suffered greatly from neglect and abuse and rapid improvement is sought.

Since so much of the happiness and success of life are bound up with your loveliness, nothing is too good or too expensive to keep you that way. Buy what you need to keep your skin soft and fine and chase away ugly blemishes, but buy wisely. Know what you are buying and whether the product answers your purpose.

Care of Toothbrush Is Most Important

Every person should have two tooth brushes, for each brush after being used should be rinsed carefully in cold water, wiped and allowed to dry for 24 hours before it is used again. Keep it out of the dust, but don't shut it up in a container where there is no free circulation of air, or it will get soggy. Cold water should always be used instead of hot for the good of your teeth and the wear of your brush.

A medical expert recommends the setting of the bristles of a new toothbrush in a strong salt solution for two hours before using, to increase the wear. But don't try to make your brush too long. Old toothbrushes are germ collectors and there is no economy in them.

Tasty Dishes for Today

SUNDAY SNACK TO PLEASE ALL

By JUDITH WILSON

IF YOU like to have guests drop in for informal Sunday evening visiting and refreshments, plan simple menus like those above, giving most emphasis to the dessert, making it as colorful and appetizing as you can. Those guests who come early can join your family at the easily prepared supper, while others dropping in later can enjoy the dessert and coffee which you have taken extra care to make festive.

Be sure to choose a dessert of great beauty and of satisfying goodness, and this doesn't mean something complex and elaborate. The finest and most satisfying dessert that you could select is fresh fruit, for instance. You can arrange an attractive glass, pewter, silver or even wooden bowl with a variety of well-chosen fruit. Plums, the green, yellow, red or purple varieties, nectarines, peaches, grapes of all kinds, red and yellow bananas, pears and apricots, with perhaps a selection of cheese and wafers, with tiny cups of black coffee make a wonderfully satisfying dessert, especially on a warm day.

Guests Choose Fruit. Each guest can state his choice of fruit and you can serve two or more varieties on an attractive plate, with a little mold of cream cheese or a slice of any other favorite cheese on a grape or pond lily leaf. Can you think of anything nicer?

Use Cooked Fruits. Next to fresh fruit, cooked fruit makes a favorite for "special" desserts. For the strawberry pears in the second menu, open a jar or can of large whole pears, place them with their syrup in a saucepan, adding enough water to cover them. Bring the syrup to a boil and add enough strawberry flavor and enough red coloring to make the syrup a rather deep red. Bring the syrup to a boil and simmer gently for five or ten minutes. Let the pears stand overnight in this liquid and chill thoroughly.

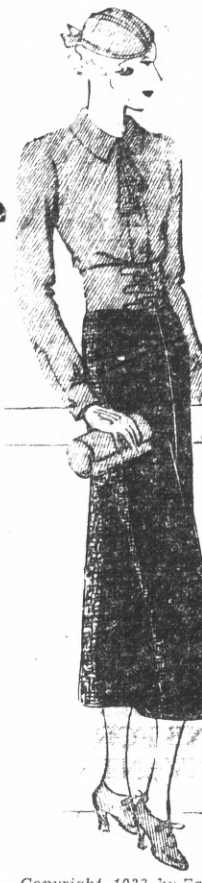

Just before serving, drain the pears and arrange one on each serving plate. Soften cream cheese with coffee cream and whip until light, then put through a pastry tube, making several flutings up the sides of each pear. If you wish a tray or basket of assorted English biscuits or sugar wafers may be passed with this impressive dessert.

Cream Puffs. Cream puffs, freshly made and served, are always festive. Make them according to your favorite recipe, pull them apart just before serving time and fill with a chilled custard or whipped cream filling. Fruit whips are also delicious as a filling or topping for cream puffs with whipped cream. Your fruit whip can

New York—Life has resolved itself into one fashion show after another. The public are certainly kept informed of what's what in clothes and given plentiful supply of rope with which to do away with themselves sartorially. It's perfectly natural to be attracted by the revict even though it may not be the best. It's that lady known as Lou, the "Diamond Lil" variety who is "stopping the show." But not every woman who applauds these opulent, and flattering costumes can quite make up her mind that they are for her. The main thing to remember is that elegance is back in favor, and the feathers and furs and rich fabrics that make for it. Just how far to go is happily left to the individual. With the choice of rich colors and fabrics, and the opportunities for blending them that are given us this season, it seems too bad if we make a mess of things by overdoing the whole thing.

For Collars Vary

There is comment on two types of fur collars which are more or less general in their representation in French collections. One is the fur collar which makes a wide background for the head and the other is the discreet cape collar which is flat and wide and a bit shouderish. The former, or fin shaped fur collar, stretches across from shoulder to shoulder giving a wide line and protects the back of the neck, while it leaves the throat open to the assault of winter winds. It is dramatic in its heights if a bit impractical at the point of fastening, but Paris designers approve it. The flat cape collar is described as another way to avoid the old-time standup or shawl collar. In its latest Paris version, the cape collar is made to stand up about the neck sufficiently to protect it from cold.

The dull velvet blouse is of the bright color, it is in short style, with little mannish green studs and cuff links. The skirt is of brown tweed and the stitched hat and amusing little "roll your own" handbag are of the same fabric as the blouse.

Home-Making

By ALINE STERN

Don't use a metal spoon for mixing cake batter. A wooden spoon does the job more quietly and much more efficiently. It will not discolor the batter.

To get the maximum lighting efficiency remove any dirt electric light bulbs periodically with a damp cloth.

Because flour has a tendency to pack down tight when being measured, it should always be sifted once before measuring. Heap it lightly into the cup, using a spoon. Finally, level off the cup measure with a spatula, or a knife in the absence of a spatula.

It pays to invest in a good can opener made of good quality steel, one that cuts clean and straight.

Peru's New President Stops a War... Country Prospers as a Result

LESS than four months after he was suddenly shoved into the presidency of Peru, through the assassination of President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, Oscar R. Benavides has made long strides toward returning his country to political and economic normalcy. In August he sent to the Peruvian Congress, a bill, which could postpone the general elections, now scheduled for November, until the first Sunday in June, 1934.

As his reason for the postponement of the elections, President Benavides stated there was necessity for more time to accomplish "political pacification." Previous to taking office, President Benavides was a political exile on and off for eighteen years, after his term as provisional president of Peru expired in 1915. Early in 1933 he returned to Peru from Great Britain where he served his country as minister and was placed in full command of military operations against Colombia, in the dispute over possession of the Leticia corridor on the upper Amazon River.

Within seven hours after President Sanchez Cerro was assassinated on April 30 last, the Constitutional Assembly elected him provisional president of the Republic of Peru to complete the unexpired term of the dead chief executive. His term continues until December, 1933.

One of his first acts on taking over the President's tasks was to enter unofficial conversations with a representative of Colombia's government regarding cessation of hostilities between the two countries. By June 15, a special League of Nations Commission had taken over the administration of the Leticia corridor and the troops of both nations returned to their home barracks and peace.

Hundreds of political prisoners were released from prison in Lima and Callao and Congress immediately set about considering a general amnesty bill, proposed by the administration, which would release most of the remainder of the political prisoners.

His next act as President was to permit Peruvian newspapers and magazines under suspension and strict censorship threatened with heavy fines for anti-government articles during the past year to publish whatever news they pleased. As a result of the lifting of this censorship, Peruvian newspapers are now enjoying an unusual period of prosperity and the reading public is enjoying its approval of the new regime by eagerly purchasing daily papers once again.

Further, the lack of internal unrest has been revealed in a marked improvement in Peru's foreign commerce. Official import and export figures for the first four months of this year as compared with the similar period in 1932 definitely indicate the upward trend in business and merchants declare conditions greatly improved during the past three months. Exports this year exceed imports by almost fifty percent, leaving a markedly favorable trade balance.

Perhaps President Benavides will set a good example to the powers that be in Paraguay, against which Bolivia is now waging an offensive in the Gran Chaco war. This is to be hoped for because of the intensive fighting over a wide front menacing a dreadful loss of life and an impediment to the progress and prosperity of both countries during a time of great economic stress and strain.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "We are going to the World's Fair by automobile and are taking our chauffeur along. We may stop off to visit friends on the way. What is the best way to arrange for his meals and lodging?"—Wm. L.

ANSWER: The best plan is to give him an allowance for board and food and let him sleep and eat where he likes.

QUESTION: "What time should a formal dinner party begin?"—Mrs. F. D.

ANSWER: Eight o'clock is the fashionable hour.

QUESTION: "Is it correct to use candles on a luncheon table?"—H. S.

ANSWER: Candles should be saved for use, on the dinner table when the occasion is a formal one. When candles are used, it is proper to have a center piece. This may be either a bowl of flowers or fruit, but it should be low, or else the view of guests sitting on opposite sides will be obstructed.

SOME PARENTS TEND TO HINDER THEIR CHILDREN

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

"DEAR MRS. MARTIN: I am glad to note that the children are back in the city again and presumably happy."

Ever since I can remember anything, my parents have nagged, bound and dragged their offspring away to rural scenes after the first of June. The children have never been consulted about the matter and their cries of protest have been stifled by their clever ruses, one of them being that their health required a change. The child almost invariably wondered about all that, never having been sick. Thus writes a father. He continues:

"I am one of those rare grumblers who believe that we accept too much of the traditional thing where children are involved. I firmly believe that many juveniles are bored to death by the rural background and that they receive better food and better treatment and have a better time generally when they are at home in the city."

"THIS camping formula for instance, has been accepted 100 percent, in many tribes. How do we know that our boys and girls like camps? Many of them detest crude living but only the few are permitted to express a preference about the matter."

"AMERICA needs some sort of a society to protect children from their parents. And the wonder of it all is that children often grow up to be useful citizens, despite the earnest efforts of their mothers and fathers to handicap their lives."

"I BELIEVE that children should be taken from parents and brought up by old maids and bachelors. The latter would be much more considerate of their welfare, being unhampered by the authority complex. 'The-Father-of-None.'"

CAN it be that the writer of the letter quoted above, knows whereof he speaks? Are there children who prefer the city streets as a play ground to the country? It seems on the face of it, a bit absurd, but one must admit that there are city-born and bred folk who are never happy away from the noise and bustle of the city, so why is it not altogether possible for the small fry to feel the same?

WOMEN who have had experience in bringing tenement children to the country for an outing tell some very strange, almost unbelievable tales of how these children react to grass and trees and to country generally. While most of them thoroughly enjoy the change, some are quite oblivious to the charms of the country and highly distrustful of it. They are delighted at the thought of getting back to their own neighborhood, crowded and noisy though it may be.

IN THE town in which I live, there has been fenced off an area for the poor children, in the Italian settlement, to play. It has swings and various play things for the youngsters, not to mention grass and trees. Do you think these youngsters prefer it to the streets? Not they. They have to be herded there as a rule unless it so happens that they are in the mood to swing or slide as the case may be.

LIKE so many things grown ups do for children, it's the grown ups and not the children who are most benefited or amused by them. Every one knows how much amusement grown ups get from certain toys that leave children curiously unmoved, and how certain books and entertainments directed to the young, pass right over their heads and are relished by their elders.

DO WE, I wonder, try to think back what we liked when we were a child, or do we just assume that children will like this or that because we want them to, or think they should.

THERE is some truth in what our "Father-of-None" says, that parents are handicapped by an authority complex and what is more important by a prejudice, fond and sometimes foolish.

A Playroom Basket

To help children acquire the habit of picking scraps and refuse off the floor after play, have a convenient waste basket at hand. The playroom basket should be spacious, light so that the child can lift it easily, and broad, so that it will not tip.
